

Executive Summary

This memorandum reviews ten comparable transactions surveyed across the Meridian Corridor and adjacent submarkets between September 2024 and August 2025. The comparable set spans office, industrial, retail, and mixed-use product, and forms the basis for the cap rate and pricing conclusions in this memo.

Underlying transaction data, including sale price, building area, and net operating income for each comparable, is maintained in the accompanying comps.xlsx workbook and is not restated in full here.

Comparable Transactions Overview

Northgate Business Park traded in March 2025 for $41,000,000 ($276.10 per square foot) at a cap rate of approximately 6.10%, consistent with prevailing suburban office cap rates at the time the asset was first underwritten.

Cedar Bluff Logistics Center, the largest asset in the comparable set at 412,000 square feet, closed in May 2025, reflecting continued investor appetite for last-mile industrial product within the corridor.

Sablewood Retail Court and Cobalt Harbor Mixed-Use round out the retail and mixed-use segments of the comparable set, trading at cap rates of 6.05% and 4.55% respectively.

Valuation Conclusion

Based on the comparable set, we recommend a stabilized going-in cap rate range of 5.10%–5.40% for institutional-quality industrial and flex assets within the Meridian Corridor, with office and retail product priced at a premium of 40–80 basis points over that range depending on tenancy profile.

Portfolio Risk Notes

Sablewood Retail Court carries elevated cap rate execution risk: the lease governing its anchor tenant includes a co-tenancy clause triggered by the anchor's below-average sales performance in fiscal year 2025, which could accelerate a lease termination right.
